Lawrenceburg still abuzz after Kentucky wins national title

Well, now, wasn't that fun? Wasn't it fun to finally breathe when Michael Kidd-Gilchrist blocked Tyshawn Taylor's layup with a minute to go Monday night? Wasn't it fun to let out that scream, pent up since 1998, when Marquis Teague sank a couple of free throws nine seconds later that all but put the national championship trophy on Kentucky's plane back to Lexington? And for about 90 percent of the college basketball fans in Anderson County, it became a great day to be a Wildcat.

But life could return to elections, city council meetings and other minor affairs on Tuesday.

"Are you kidding me?" Claudia Flowers said with a laugh on Tuesday morning.

The self-described "chief cook, bottle washer and all-purpose girl" for the Sand Trap restaurant at Wild Turkey Trace golf course, Flowers had been talking about Kentucky's

When I moseyed in, the restaurant was virtually empty, but the golfers that had gone through the clubhouse were bleeding Blue. Just like Flowers.

"It is the elephant in the room," she said. "Is there anything else to talk about?"

Well, not really. At least nothing as important as getting rid of 14 years of frustration since the last time the Wildcats were crowned the best of the breed.

Jailer miffed after city allows prisoner to take smoke break

By Ben Carlson

An unwatched inmate on work release to the city of Lawrenceburg stepped outside for a smoke break Monday afternoon and simply walked away.

Woodford County Jail inmate Kevin Spurlock, a 31-year-old white male with the words "white boy" tattooed on the left side of his neck, took off around 12:40 p.m. from the city's maintenance garage, located near the county park.

"He was working at the maintenance shop and had just finished lunch," said Mayor Edwinna Baker. "You can't smoke inside of city buildings, so he stepped outside to smoke."

"He was gone longer than anticipated, and when [city employees] went outside to check on him, he wasn't there."

Baker said once city employees noticed Spurlock was gone, public works director Larry Hazlett alerted the jail.

Chainsaw accident nearly severs woman's leg

Champion recuperating, is expected to keep injured leg

By Ben Carlson

A Lawrenceburg woman whose left foot was nearly cut off in a chainsaw accident last week is recovering following a pair of surgeries at the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Terri Champion, 53, of 1190 Beaver Lake Road, was operating what family members said was a bush-whacker when a chainsaw chain flew off and struck her just

"It was severed except for one tendon," said Champion's sister-in-law, Regina Edington.

The incident occurred last Friday morning when Champion was clearing brush around her husband's garage at their home. She was airlifted to the hospital, where Edington said she underwent surgery that day, followed by another Monday.

"She's still in a very serious situation, but she's doing amazingly well," Edington said. "Her wound is massive, but the doctors are very optimistic."

"After surgery [Monday], she could wiggle her toes."

Edington said that what she and her husband Rob-

Turkey bottling comes home

Distillery breaks ground on $44 million facility

Master Distiller Jimmy Russell waited while politicians ranging from the mayor to the governor said their piece before summing it up perfectly: "Bottling is coming back home, where it belongs," he said.

That was the overriding sentiment last Thursday when the owners of the Wild Turkey distillery hosted a groundbreaking ceremony to commemorate its announced $44 million bottling facility.

Russell praised the efforts of Gruppo Campari, the group that owns the distillery, saying the investment it has shown in Lawrenceburg since buying the brand several years ago has been profound.

"In only three years, look at what they've done," Russell minutes,” Lovins, who is also Johnny’s legal guardian, said. “He was back in the van, sitting.”

There was no device on the market that the couple could find to keep Johnny’s seat belt safely and securely fastened.

So David Lovins, who works in fabrication on race cars, fashioned a seat belt guard out of a plastic Walmart gift card.

That prototype became the beginnings of the “Johnny Guard,” and start-up Lawrenceburg business Proven Products, LLC.

Lovins and her business partner and friend Melissa Yates began their business in their basements, spending hours testing different versions of David Lovins’ original gift card seat belt guard idea.

“We worked for quite some time in the house, in the basement,” Yates said.

“Cut some fingers,” Lovins added. After tweaking the design for a few years, Lovins and Yates brought their idea to a tool and die company in Louisville, which led them to a manufacturer in Shelbyville. Their company, Proven Products, received its business license in September 2011.

The final Johnny Guard device, made of out hard gray plastic and named after Lovins’ grandson, slips over a child’s seat belt buckle and attaches itself to the seat belt with fabric fastener.

To release it, children must have the strength to slip their small fingers into the channel on the lock and then press down on the seat belt button. Adults, Lovins and Yates said, can release the button easily.

Lovins and Yates said they’ve done their homework, researching accident cases on the Internet regarding children who were run over by falling out of vehicles, and other “horror stories.”

They’ve also sought the professional advice of local EMS, police and even Sharon Rengers, an R.N. and child safety advocate with Kosair Children’s hospital, on the safety of the Johnny Guard.

“I think the concept was admirable; it seemed like a good idea,” Rengers said, who spoke to Lovins and Yates about a year ago about the design of the device. “When I saw the initial design early on, it seemed like a possibility.”

At the time, Rengers said she recommended that Yates and Lovins test the Johnny Guard in a crash simulation to see if it would be safe in an accident. Rengers said that this kind of testing is not officially or federally required, however, before a product goes to market.

“As far as we could find, there was none that was required,” Lovins said of national safety testing requirements.

Yates, whose full-time job involves work as an environmental health and safety manager, said she was concerned about the ramifications should the guard malfunction during an accident, and therefore, sought the opinion of health professionals. Yates said there is an unbelievable need for a product like the Johnny Guard.

“Everyone seems to have the same problem with children from 12 months to 4 years,” Yates said. “If you look at the statistics, there’s so many different areas that identify in that age group; there are so many children that are injured because of lack of restraint.”

Lovins agreed, adding that children with cognitive disabilities are often attracted to the bright red color of the seat belt button.

“Most of them [experts] will say children will play with the red button,” she said.

Lovins and Yates say their patent for the Johnny Guard is pending, but their seat belt lock is not the first of its kind on the market.

However the Johnny Guard is the first of its kind without a “pill button” type lock, which requires several actions before release, they said.

“There are several things out there, but they all require action to get to the button,” Yates said.

In addition to being used with children, Yates said the Johnny Guard has also been used for prisoners, who according to law, must be wearing seat belts while being transported.

Yates said her brother, a police officer, is currently testing the seat belt guard when transporting drunk drivers that need to remain buckled.

The seat belt lock is also helpful for keeping the elderly safely fastened in vehicles, Lovins and Yates said.

The Proven Products company has manufactured 1,000 parts to begin with, Yates and Lovins said, for a total 500 units, with each package featuring two Johnny Guards (one for the driver’s side and the other for passenger’s), fabric fasteners and directions.

Yates and Lovins are still exploring their options in terms of expanding the business, but would eventually like to see the Johnny Guard available in retail stores like Walmart.

But it was never their intent to bring the Johnny Guard to the point of manufacturing, Yates said, though they’ve always dabbled in other business ventures such as real estate and farming operations.

“We were doing this for him, initially,” she said, gesturing to the four-year-old Johnny. “I’ve got three girls and three grandsons,” Lovins said, “and I can’t image losing them.”

Even if the product “goes nowhere,” Yates said, it’s nice to know that a child would be safe because of their Johnny Guard.

“I’ve protected him [Johnny] and our families,” Lovins said.

Woodford County Jailer Johnny Jones seemed miffed that Spurlock, a state inmate serving a five-year sentence for receiving stolen property, was allowed to smoke at all.

“My inmates are not allowed to smoke, even when they are on work release,” Jones said. “[City officials] told me he had just stepped outside the door for a breath of fresh air, which he frequently did, and five or 10 minutes later when they walked outside, he was gone.”

“I don’t know if he was smoking, but if they said he was, he probably was, but he’s not supposed to be allowed to smoke.”

Spurlock was missing for nearly four hours before news of him walking away was made public in a news release issued by the jail.

Jones said his office released the information after conducting a search and investigating the incident.

“We spent the first couple of hours looking to see if we could find him,” Jones said.

Spurlock walked away from the maintenance building around 12:40 p.m., according to a news release from the detention center.

Jones said his office was notified around 1 p.m. that Spurlock was missing.

It wasn’t until 1:30 p.m. that the city of Lawrenceburg’s 911 dispatch center was notified, according to a dispatcher on duty Tuesday morning, who said a broadcast call went out to city, state and the Anderson County Sheriff’s Office “soon after.”

That means Spurlock was apparently on the loose for nearly an hour before law enforcement was called. Jones explained that lapse, saying that he and two members of his staff traveled from the jail in Woodford County to Lawrenceburg to look for the inmate before calling law enforcement.

Jones said city employees received training before they are allowed to supervise inmates on work release, and that nothing requires them to keep a constant eye on them.

“It’s hard to stay with them every minute of the time,” he said. “They’re supposed to check on them every five minutes or so, and I don’t think the city did anything wrong.”

Asked if it’s possible that Spurlock took off just hours before UK played for the national championship so he could watch, Jones said that isn’t likely.

“He’s a Class D inmate, and Class D inmates all have their own TV’s,” he said, adding that Spurlock likely had a different motivation for escaping.

“He’s in love with his girlfriend,” he said. “He’s on the phone with her constantly, and I think that was the reason.”

“We’ve spoken with the girlfriend, and she said she has spoken with him by phone. She said he told her he was headed out of the state, but I’m not sure I believe that.”

Spurlock was wearing a dark colored shirt and blue jeans at the time of his escape.

In photos released by the jail, Spurlock is a white man with a mustache and thin goatee. He has a series of tattoos, including the words “white boy” tattooed on the left side of his neck.

Anyone with information is asked to call 911.

Darius Miller, put on a dazzling display in the first half. Remember the argument whether or not UK could beat the Washington Wizards a few weeks back?

For a half, that was a given. Next? How about the Miami Heat? Boston Celtics?

OK, let's not get carried away, but for Monday's first half, UK was a team unlike any college club over the last 25 years. And even when Anthony Davis finally scored from the field, a beauty of a jump shot that put UK up 59-44 with just over five minutes to go, we still held our breath.

We knew this was the real one-and-done. We knew Villanova had beaten Georgetown on Kentucky's home floor. How could we forget? It was only mentioned 8,377 times in the tournament.

We knew that Kansas had denied John Calipari his crown by rallying from nine down in the last two minutes four years back. We'd only heard that 8,378 times.

And we had seen Kansas stage miraculous comebacks in the tournament. We all did only what we could do.

We held our breath.

"I had seen the Ohio State (vs. Kansas semifinal) game, and how at the end of the game, Ohio State just dismantled," Flowers said.

But even though Kansas fought gamely, Kentucky somehow came up with the plays at the end, whether they be the spectacular (Kidd-Gilchrist's block), the routine (Teague and Doron Lamb making free throws in the final minute) or the immeasurable, as in Davis forcing Elijah Johnson to walk inside the final 30 seconds.

"They have been so consistently great," Flowers said.

Unfortunately, most of the big guns will be raking in the NBA millions next year. You can't blame anyone if the opportunity is there. It's just how the game is being played today.

Flowers, for one, isn't worried. John Calipari will just reload on the recruiting trail.

"Calipari is a genius with (the one-and-done player)," she said. "Every other coach wishes he was Cal."

Never has that been more true than the first week of April, 2012.

And in these parts, it is a time of celebration.

said in reference to the new distillery and planned visitors center. "They believe in Kentucky."

Combined, the bottling facility, new distillery and visitor's center will total roughly $100 million in investments since Gruppo Campari purchased the historic bourbon brand, according to a news release.

The bottling facility is expected to open in 2013, and will add up to 62 jobs.

"This is an exciting time for Kentucky and the Wild Turkey distillery," said Gov. Steve Beshear, who participated in the groundbreaking ceremony.

"Wild Turkey would not be expanding if not for the quality of workforce in Anderson County."

Wild Turkey currently bottles around 1 million 9-liter cases each year, but the new facility is expected to increase that output to over 4 million cases, according to information provided by the company, including Gruppo Campari's SKYY vodka brand.

Along with Beshear, Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway, Mayor Edwinna Baker, state Rep. Kim King and state Sen. Julian Carroll spoke during the event.

Afterward, a tour of the facility was hosted by Russell and his son, Associate Master Distiller Eddie Russell, who walked visitors through the new distillery and hosted a tasting in its new tasting room.

"I cannot stress how grateful they are for all the phone calls and prayers and everyone wanting to know if there's anything they can do," said Edington. "It's been overwhelming."

Edington said she's not surprised that her sister-in-law's spirits are high, or that she is doing as well as she is despite such a serious injury.

"It's amazing, but if you knew my sister-in-law, you probably wouldn't be amazed. She walks two hours each day, eats right and works hard. She has no health problems, and that's so much to her advantage."

Edington said Champion could be

"They may possibly have to do some bone grafting because a partial piece of the tibia is gone, but that's probably three months away, if she has to have it."

Anderson County EMS and fire and rescue responded the scene.

Don't rejoice yet over low unemployment

Column as I see 'em ...
The old adage that figures lie and liars figure has never been truer than it is today, especially when it's the government doing the figuring.

Each month I receive unemployment data from the state's office of employment and training, and it's about as useful as tickets to have watched Louisville play in Monday's NCAA finals.

This month's data claim that unemployment fell in 111 of Kentucky's 120 counties when comparing this February to last.

Before jumping up and down and declaring the recession finished, consider what those numbers don't tell you in Kentucky, as well as on the national level.

Since the state and nation began hemorrhaging jobs for real about four years ago, unemployment climbed over 10 percent fairly quickly and stayed there about two years.

Since then, the unemployment here and nationally has crept incrementally down, drawing hooray's from those to obtuse to realize why while those who do understand deviously take credit where credit isn't due.

The reason isn't that millions of jobs have been created. Instead, it's because so many people have exhausted their unemployment benefits they are no longer counted among the unemployed, even though they don't have jobs.

Hardly a reason to cheer, but those aspiring to stay in elected office do so anyway, apparently hoping that the majority are among those too obtuse to know better.

And they're doing the same with inflation. Measured largely by the consumer price index, inflation means people can buy less of the things they need or want unless their salaries increase accordingly.

As they have with unemployment rates, Washington's chief figurers play a cute little trick when stating the inflation rate — they don't include the two staples of American life: food and fuel.

Those two categories have risen dramatically during the past three years — as if you didn't know.

Now you'll know the truth the next time some blowhard on TV or radio tries to convince you how wonderful things are and why those in elected office deserve to stay there.

Those who haven't toured the new Wild Turkey distillery are missing out on a very cool way to spend an hour or two.

I had that pleasure last week following a groundbreaking ceremony for the new bottling facility there. It was made even cooler because the tour was given by Associate Master Distiller Eddie Russell, and his dad, Master Distiller Jimmy, was with the group, too.

Lawrenceburg lifers probably aren't as aware as someone from the outside (that's me) of just how cool it is to walk with them through the distillery, and hang out afterward in the tasting room while samples are sipped and tales are told.

It's something I'll always remember, and am grateful for the opportunity.

Here's proof that a person learns something new nearly every day.

I had a fellow walk in last week who was more than a little upset at the health department. He said he wanted to get his blood pressure checked, but for various reasons could not.

He was right. I made a phone call and learned that nearly every service provided by the health department is on an appointment basis, and then almost exclusively for preventative care.

Basically, there are no doctors on staff there, and solutions to genuine medical issues aren't what that facility provides.

I also learned that there is a place in Lawrenceburg where people can get their blood pressure checked without an appointment, and that's at the ambulance building, located on the Bypass across from Kroger.

I feel smarter already.

Plug in, tweet and be heard

Can you tell me how we can improve Anderson County in 140 characters or less?

Now you can.

Some authors wrote entire novels based on exposure on Twitter.

Others, like the president, have even held town hall meetings by responding to questions via tweet.

The Anderson News isn't looking to write the next Great American novel, or throw a hat into the presidential ring.

We're simply offering another chance for readers to become an integral part of the news making process — a few hashtags and sentences at a time.

For me and many other Anderson County residents, cell phones have become as essential in our daily lives as breathing.

It's the necessary lifeline to friends. Family. Work. The world.

Your phone sleeps peacefully by your side at night, resting on nightstand.

It's a constant companion during the day, tucked away in either a bag or pocket, ready to come to the rescue at a moment's notice.

The Anderson News' rebooted Twitter account should also be a one-stop shop for readers who want to keep their finger on the pulse of news affecting

Anderson County.

And don't just take my word for it. About 34 percent of cell phone users reported getting their daily news fix from the screens of their cell phones, and that number keeps growing every day.

According to the Pew Research Center, which conducted a 2012 study on the State of the Media, "Mobile devices are adding to people's news consumption, strengthening the lure of traditional news brands and providing a boost to long-form journalism."

Likewise, we want to give readers a chance to weigh in and discuss Lawrenceburg happenings, from the mundane to the unusual to the extraordinary.

As the reporter focused on education and city government, I know I'll be letting our readers know the result of important budgetary votes as soon as they happen. I'll provide links about national and state education issues that affect your children.

Be aware of warning signs of depression

Depression affects older adults more than most people realize.

Extension Homemakers in Anderson County and throughout the Fort Harrod area have been learning about depression.

The goal of the program is three fold:

Recognize signs of clinical depression and seek treatment.

Reduce the stigma associated with having depression.

Provide support for loved ones who experience depression.

Depression is common. Twelve percent of women and 7 percent of men have experienced depression. Six million adults over age 65 have depression.

About 25 percent of nursing home residents have depression.

Depression is not a normal part of aging. Help is available. Medication may greatly improve the symptoms of depression. Medications for depression are not habit forming or addictive.

That's the good news.

The bad news is that medication is not an instant fix. Some of the traditional medications used to treat depression take 21 to 28 days to become effective. Some of those medications may produce unpleasant side effects temporarily.

Some of the physical symptoms of depression are fatigue, weight loss, loss of appetite, sleep disturbances, unexplained aches and pains such as backaches, headaches and abdominal pain.

Emotional symptoms include sadness, loss of self-worth, feelings of helplessness and hopelessness, feelings of guilt and shame or fixation on death and suicidal thoughts or attempts.

Psychosocial symptoms include losing interest in hobbies, social withdrawal and isolation, and increased use of alcohol or other drugs.

Memory problems, irritability and lack of interest in personal care may also be evident in older adults who experience depression.

Depression co-exists with other severe illness. The following is a list of serious illness and the percent of those patients who also experience depression.

Cancer - 25 percent

Diabetes - 25 percent

Multiple sclerosis - 40 percent

Parkinson's disease - 40 percent

Heart attack - 40 to 65 percent

So why don't we talk about depression?

Some people believe that they should just be able to think positively and get over depression. They don't see it as a "real" illness.

They believe that they have control over depression and it must be a weakness on their part if they experience depression.

This is not accurate.

Depression does not have one single cause. It isn't the same as a passing blue mood or a period of sadness that is linked to a specific time or event such as a death in the family.

Depression can last a lifetime. It is pervasive, disabling and it can kill you. Depression is a medical condition that needs treatment.

Older adults may take medications that cause symptoms of depression or make pre-existing depression worse. Medications that can cause depression include steroids, painkillers, hormones, arthritis medication, high blood pressure drugs, heart disease medication, tranquilizers, and cancer drugs.

Talk to your medical provider about the possible effects of other medications.

What can you do to be supportive of someone who has depression? Be non-judgmental and don't give advice. Encourage your loved one to stay in treatment.

Eighty percent of individuals in treatment do get better. Invite your loved one to go for walks or outings. Never ignore comments about suicide.

The person who is at greatest risk of suicide is a man who is 85 years or older.

Good Friday is a great day to start potato plants

I've discovered one downside to the mild winter. I didn't get much of a work-out and neither did the dogs.

I got into "full garden mode" a couple of weeks ago and Spanky and Tiller joined in to help. Keep in mind that most everything is done by hand with a lot of swinging and digging and trips up the hill.

The dogs follow my every step, with the exception of a rabbit run or two, and I take a lot of steps. Do you know that those fur balls had the nerve to sleep in the next day!

Honest to John, I had to make them get up at 8 a.m. Guess they have to get in shape too.

Good Friday is almost here and for some that is the day to plant potatoes. If you have never grown your own potatoes, I strongly encourage you to give it a try.

The taste of a home grown spud is one that shouldn't be missed. I must warn you though, once you try them, you'll never be satisfied with a store bought potato again.

Potatoes can be grown in a variety of ways. Last summer I grew some in bags hanging from a rail.

Production was lower than in the ground, but all I had to do to harvest was pour the soil out of the bag. No digging!

I've also grown them in circles made of wire and filled with straw. This gives you plenty of potatoes and they come out clean.

Any container method will require adding layers as the plant grows and monitoring the moisture closely. Plant-

Lose weight, lower your risk for type 2 diabetes

You don't have to knock yourself out to lower your risk - in fact, the findings of a major study show that modest weight loss can reduce the risk of type 2 diabetes by more than half.

Here are some proven small steps developed by the National Diabetes Education Program (NDEP) to help you make gradual lifestyle changes to lose weight safely and keep it off.

April Thomas
Guest columnist

Small step No. 1

Set a weight loss goal you can meet before starting a weight loss plan. Aim to lose about 5 to 7 percent of your current weight - that's 10 to 14 pounds if you weigh 200 pounds. Keep track of your daily food intake and physical activity in a log book and review it daily to see how you are doing. For support, invite family and friends to get involved.

Small step No. 2

Make healthy food choices every day. Keep healthy snacks such as fruit on hand at home. Pack healthy lunches so that your family can take charge of what they eat during the day. To make sure you get enough fiber, eat more fruit and select a mix of colorful vegetables. Drink low-fat or nonfat milk or choose low-fat cheese. Choose whole-grain cereals, breads, crackers, brown rice, pasta, or oatmeal. Select lean meats and poultry. Vary your protein choices by choosing more fish, beans, peas, nuts, and seeds.

Small step No. 3

Strive to become more physically active. If you are not active, start off slowly and choose a physical activity you will stick with most days of the week. Slowly add more time until you reach at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity physical activity five days a week. Build physical activity into your day. Take a brisk walk during lunchtime. Take the stairs instead of the elevator, or park farther away from your office. Join a community program like the YMCA as a family and choose activities that everyone can enjoy such as swimming, water aerobics, or dance classes. Keep at it and remember to celebrate small successes.

Four Roses to release limited edition single barrel bourbon

From staff reports

This spring, Four Roses Distillery will issue the newest release in its series of limited-quantity special bottlings with the 2012 Limited Edition Single Barrel Bourbon, which will be bottled at barrel strength and encompass a spicy, full-bodied recipe, the distillery announced.

Four Roses Master Distiller Jim Rutledge selected a 12-year-old bourbon that uses Four Roses' recipe coded OESK, one of the 10 uniquely handcrafted bourbon recipes produced by the Lawrenceburg-based distillery. Among the flavor characteristics, the new bourbon exhibits an aroma of smoky oak featuring ripe red cherries, nutmeg and hints of toasted almonds.

The palate offers flavors of creamy vanilla and caramel combined with layers of rich honey, cinnamon and brown sugar, finishing with soft undertones of toasted almonds.

"This year's single barrel selection really brings out the spicy aroma and flavor that is characteristic of our OESK recipe," said Rutledge. "When I tasted it I found cinnamon and nutmeg spices were evident, and felt it would make for a great bourbon to be enjoyed neat or on the rocks."

Four Roses' 10 distinct recipes allow the distillery to continually offer a variety of unique, limited-edition single barrel bottlings.

A barrel strength bottling offers bourbon enthusiasts the opportunity to taste straight from the barrel, when the bourbon is uncut and non-chill filtered.

At a proof range between 100.6 and 114.4, approximately 4,000 bottles of the Four Roses 2012 Limited Edition Single Barrel Bourbon are planned for distribution in mid-April to U.S.

markets where the brand is currently available.

"I believe this bourbon has the potential to become a classic," added Rutledge. "It's a testament to the capabilities of our ten recipes, the flexibility of our distillery and all the people attached to the brand."

In November, for the second consecutive year and third time in five years, Four Roses Distillery was named 2012 "Whisky Distiller of the Year - America" by worldwide whisky industry publication, Whisky Magazine, during the annual Icons of Whisky Awards.

ing them in the ground lessens the water monitoring.

Potatoes planted in the ground like loose soil that's slightly acidic. Any way you choose to grow starts with seeds.

Seeds for potatoes are just little chunks of potatoes (1 1/2 inches) with one or two eyes. You need to cut the potatoes a day before the planting, so they can "cure" a little to prevent rotting in the soil.

If you plant in the ground, start by digging a long trench about 6 inches deep. Plant the seeds in the trench. Space them out every 12-15 inches. Be sure to leave about 2 feet between your rows. After you've dropped in the spuds, cover them with 4 inches of soil.

After two weeks or so, add another 2 inches of soil on top to fill in the trench to soil level. You can then weed and cover the surrounding soil with layers of newspaper and then straw on top.

This will keep weeds from growing and competing for nutrients and moisture from the soil. It will also boost your harvest!

Potato plants like full sun, but the spuds do not. Always keep them covered or the skins will turn green and toxic. It takes about 90-100 days to grow full size potatoes, so you should have plenty of spuds by the 4th of July, if you plant on Good Friday.

Of course, you can carefully dig some early to get "new" baby potatoes to go with the beans!

Now, let's get physical! Put the sweat band on and get digging. Put on some tunes! No one said you couldn't have a good time while working out. Old fart that I am, I listen to books until my energy runs down. That's when I break out the classic rock! The dogs just go for a dip in the creek.

Whatever you do, make it fun! Happy Growing!

Health department offers free radon test kits

From staff reports

Testing a home for deadly radon is simple — and free. The Anderson County Health Department is offering free radon test kits, according to a news release. Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas released in rock, soil and water from the natural decay of uranium, according to health department nurse April Thomas. While levels in outdoor air pose a relatively low threat to human health, radon can accumulate to dangerous levels inside buildings. "You can't see, smell or taste it, but an elevated radon level in your home may be affecting the health of your family," Thomas said. Radon gas enters through cracks and openings — such as doors, windows and plumbing features. Hot spots include basements, first-floor rooms and garages, but radon can be found anywhere in a home. "Radon has been found in elevated levels in homes in every state," Thomas said. "Two homes right next to each other can have vastly different radon levels. The only way to know if your home is under the EPA action level of 4 pCi/L is to test." The U.S. Surgeon General recommends that all homes in the U.S. be tested for radon. If your house has a radon problem, you can take steps to fix it to protect yourself and your family. Testing is simple. It's as easy as opening a package, placing a radon detector in a designated area and leaving it undisturbed for three to seven days. The detector is then sent to a lab for analysis. Radon is measured in picocuries per liter of air (pCi/L), a measurement of radioactivity. EPA and the Center for Disease Control and Prevention recommend that homes with radon levels at 4 pCi/L or higher should be fixed. EPA also recommends that Americans consider fixing their homes for radon levels between 2 pCi/L and 4 pCi/L. For more information, call Thomas at 839-4551, or visit achdonline.org.

Jasmine ID# D-693

Meet Jasmine

DOB (08/96). Looking at Jasmine's picture, you will see an adorable young girl who is sweet and a little bit shy at times. When being taped for Wednesday's Child, the gymnastics teacher said Jasmine has a natural talent for it! She manages to have a smile and a good attitude even though she has been through some difficult losses. Jasmine has made progress in the last year but will continue to need assistance. Jasmine is friendly and sociable but still needs lots of attention and parental approval. Jasmine talks about adoption and is hopeful for a home. She just needs someone to tell her that she matters. Jasmine likes dancing and crafts. In school, Jasmine does well with her work and with organized activities. She also likes going shopping (like most girls!) and to movies and playing games. Jasmine misses living with her little brother but they stay in contact with each other—this will need to continue even after Jasmine goes to live with her adoptive family. Are you the family that can help Jasmine succeed and be happy?

Springate.

15 YEARS AGO
April 2, 1997

David Wilcher was selected at Citizen of the Month for saving a child's life during a trip to the YMCA in Frankfort. The children were five-year-olds, first graders and a handful of fifth and sixth graders from Alton Baptist Church.

A little girl got out just over her head in five feet of water and was struggling to stay afloat.

"David and the lifeguard on duty race to the edge of the pool. The lifeguard got the attention of a 10-year-old in the pool beside her and instructed her to help the little girl. She didn't know what to do.

"Instead of jumping in himself, the lifeguard then disappeared around the corner. By the time he returned with a ski belt to reach to the little girl, David (who didn't like water) had jumped in and was handing the child to her relieved and grateful grandmother," according to a nomination letter by Beverly McElwain.

"Interestingly enough, David had never seen this little girl before that day: she was an invited guest of someone in the church.

"When commenting on what he had done, David modestly replied, "I didn't have a choice. She had already gone under twice, and was going under a third time."

Teresa Lotz, mother of four, earns a GED diploma.

She quit school at age 16 to get married. She promised her parents she would go back and graduate, but as her family grew, she never did.

She Teresa first came to the Adult Learning Center, she wrote a short paper on the reason she wanted to get her GED.

Her children were her biggest reason. She wanted to earn that diploma to be a good role model for her children.

Amanda Gibbons, daughter of Mark and Cheryl Gibbons, was Cheerleader of the Week. She was a member of the Girls' Varsity Squad.

John Herndon featured Joe Smith in a story about his switch of the game.

As a senior at Anderson County High School, Joe Smith was leading vote getter on the coaches' all-state team. He garnered votes as quarterback, safety, running back and kicker.

Now at Eastern Kentucky, Smith is a receiver. A catcher. A backstop. He played football one year and switched to baseball — his first love.

"I realized after I got to college that I loved baseball a lot more." Smith, now a collegiate junior says, "I knew I wanted to play baseball a whole lot more."

Library joins 'One Book One Bluegrass' program

From staff reports
Anderson Public Library will host its first month-long community reading program with Kentucky's "One Book One Bluegrass" starting in April.

The book chosen for this year's program is "A Walk in the Woods," and all of the programs offered through "One Book One Bluegrass." Programs offered include:

April 7: Geodes, Rocks, Minerals and Fossils
Matt Brennan, a budding 13-year-old geologist, will discuss names and ranking of minerals, crystal systems, formations and types of rocks, as well as other topics regarding fossils and minerals at 1 p.m. in the public meeting room.

April 12: Attracting Birds to Your Backyard
Marycarol Cooper, the former director of the Native Plant program at Salato Wildlife Education Center in Frankfort, will be presenting a program at 6:30 p.m. about Kentucky's native birds and songbirds.

April 14: A Walk in the Bluegrass
The library will offer a community hike at 2 p.m. at the Wildlife Managed Area at the end of Palmer Road/Old River Road in Anderson County. There will also be a pulled trailer with hay bales provided for anyone with limitations.

April 16: 'A Walk in the Woods' book discussion
Join the community and the library's book club at 6:30 p.m. to discuss the One Book One Bluegrass book selection.

April 17: How to Make Your Own Walking Stick
Lawrenceburg resident Richard Day will teach participants in a presentation at 7 p.m. on how to turn a tobacco stick into a work of art, event organizers said. Day will bring and share examples of the process.

April 21: Rehab of Louisville presents Birds of Prey
The Raptor Rehab will be bringing five live birds of prey - a barn owl, the Great Horned owl, red-tailed hawk, turkey vulture and a peregrine falcon - to the library at 1 p.m. for a presentation in the meeting room.

April 23: Foraging in Anderson County
John Strang, a professor of horticulture at the University of Kentucky, will be giving a presentation at 6 p.m. in the meeting room based on his background as a fruit and vegetable specialist.

April 26: The Beauty of Butterflies
Cheryl Snow, a biologist, will be giving a presentation at 7 p.m. on the natural habitat of butterflies and how to attract them to backyards.

April 28: Nature Photography
Lois Todd, a local and regional painter and nature photographer, will be giving a presentation at 8 a.m. The public is invited to bring cameras for a nature shoot.

Skeptics, take note of Bible's accuracy

When speaking with others about the word of God, I often run into skeptics who say that the Bible has been changed over time. They say that King James translated it into his own version, and that it's not wholly accurate.

Jess Thompson
Faith columnist

Sadly for the many that I hear make such foolish statements, the Bible is real and accurate. Let me tell you why I believe this, and so should you.

There are more than 5,000 New Testament transcripts today, some of which have been documented as dating back to the second century.

There is work currently being done by the Dallas Theology Seminary that is close to confirming a first century manuscript of the New Testament.

In Lee Strobel's book, "The Case for Christ," the author discusses how close the authors of the Bible were to actual events.

"If the Crucifixion was as early as A.D. 30, Paul's conversion was about 32. Immediately Paul was ushered into Damascus, where he met Ananias and some other disciples. His first meeting with the apostles in Jerusalem would have been about A.D. 35.

"Now you have the key facts about Jesus' death for our sins, plus a detailed list of those to whom he appeared in resurrected form — all dating back to within two to five years of the events themselves!"

Folks, Paul wrote much of the New Testament. We can prove the authenticity of the Bible with various transcripts that date back to Christ.

The late author and scholar F.F. Bruce of the University of Manchester in England said, "There is no body of ancient literature in the world which enjoys such a wealth of good textual attestation as the New Testament."

Truly, the Bible is original in its context.

Furthermore, from a historical perspective — not a religious one — it is the most accurate and documented body of literature ever. Next time someone tells you the Bible has been changed or is not accurate, ask him to prove it.

I can prove otherwise, and hopefully so can you.

CHURCH BRIEFS

Sovereign Grace hosts simulcast on April 6

Sovereign Grace Church will host a live simulcast of David Platt's Secret Church on April 6 from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m.

According to event organizers, "Platt is the author of the best selling book, "Radical," and is a dynamic preacher.

"The topic will be 'The Cross and Suffering,' and how the gospel strengthens, sustains, supports and ultimately satisfies us in the middle of suffering."

Sovereign Grace Church is located in the West Park Shopping Center next to Tractor Supply in Lawrenceburg.

Childcare will not be provided.

Glensboro Christian to host Easter services

The families of Glensboro Christian Church invite the community to join the church for its Easter celebration.

The weekend services begin April 6 with a Good Friday fellowship meal at 6 p.m., a short devotion by senior minister Garry Cheek and concluding with a candlelight communion service.

On April 7, activities continue with a church-wide luncheon at noon, followed by an Easter egg hunt. Prizes will be awarded.

Glensboro Christian will also host the "Community Sunrise Service" on April 8 at 7 p.m. According to event organizers, "Everyone is invited to stay afterwards and enjoy coffee and doughnuts and a special time of fellowship."

Morning worship on Easter Sunday will be from 10:30 a.m. to 12 p.m. This will include a time of praise and worship and the Adult Choir will be presenting its cantata. There will be no Sunday school hour or evening service.

Glensboro Christian is located about eight miles down Highway 44 West (on the left).

The senior minister is Garry Cheek, associate minister is Matthew Spaulding and the youth minister is Chris Akins.

The church van is available and transportation can be requested by contacting Garry Cheek at 502-839-6541 or Chris Akins at 502-330-9342.

Grafenburg Christian hosts Easter cantata

Grafenburg Christian Church will host the Easter cantata "He Lives" on April 8 at 11 a.m.

The public is welcome to attend.

Salt River Independent sets Easter service

Easter service is scheduled for 7 a.m. April 8 at Salt River Independent Baptist Church, according to a news release.

Sunday school is scheduled for 10 a.m., followed by the church's regular service at 11.

The church is located at 1126 Salt River Road.

"Come join us for the celebration of our Lord's resurrection," said Pastor Carl Bush.

Would-be sensationalists are always saying, "It is later than you think." They use this ploy to try to get us into a religious discussion of just how bad this world HAS BECOME (as if it were something recent). The truth of the matter, the world is not getting worse it is just continuing on the same downward path that it has been on since the flood. Many of these teachers have been guilty of even trying to date the end of time: 1914, 1925, and 1975 etc. In fact, one false teacher said it was to have happened last year.

We should not be scared into believing that the world is in such bad shape that we should fear for our existence. The thing that ought to concern us is not staying on this earth, but missing out on heaven. You see, this earth is doomed for total destruction by God (2 Peter 3:9-13). Again, forget about this earth and start preparing for heaven. Unless your name is written in the "Lamb's Book of life" you will miss heaven and reap hell (Psa. 69:28; Phil. 4:3; Rev. 3:5; 13:8; 17:8; 20:12; 21:27; 22:19; Matthew 25:31-46).

We are taught by Paul that we should live soberly, rightly and godly (Titus 2:11-15) in this present world; before we can do that we must be Christians (Acts 2:38, 47). After becoming God child we are to remain steadfast (1 Cor. 15:58) and all will be well. You can have peace with God and God will take care of the world. Quit trying to whittle on His end of the stick.

Anderson County senior citizens visit state capitol

From staff reports

A group of concerned Anderson County senior citizens traveled to Frankfort to participate in a advocacy effort to let senators of the state know the importance of continued funding needs for area Meals On Wheels program.

The Anderson County group left the local senior citizens office around 10:30 a.m. and arrived at the Kentucky State Annex Building for lunch. At noon the group, along with other Kentucky senior groups, traveled to the state capitol where a rally was held outside the Senate Chamber doors.

The Anderson group then left the capitol building and made their way back to the annex building, where they visited the office of state Sen. Julian Carroll. Each member of the group wrote a message on a paper plate, showing support for the continuation of state funds for local Meals On Wheels programs.

After the trip to the state House, the group made a tour of the Rebecca Ruth Candy Factory and a quick drive-by visit to the Kentucky History Museum and the Old Kentucky State Capitol, then returned to the local center.

Epic game was lesson for us all

It was an epic, that little Commonwealth Confrontation on Saturday. No doubt about that.

It was a show of the Final Four. A symphony directed by a pair of master conductors.

And if there was any disappointment in that battle between Kentucky and Louisville on Saturday, then that person is just impossible to please.

Or, perhaps a Cardinal fan who saw his team's season come to an end at the hands of the team it wants to beat the most.

But even then, a Cardinal could be disappointed, yet proud of how Louisville took it to Kentucky, pushed the Wildcats to the brink and delayed the presumed Kentucky coronation to the final minute.

It was the magic of Rick Pitino that Kentucky fans fell in love with between 1989 and 1997.

Today? Let's just say most UK fans have no desire to exchange Christmas cards with the man who rebuilt their program and won a national championship there.

But the reason Kentucky eventually won it all has also become the Cardinals' biggest nemesis.

When John Calipari arrived in Lexington in 2009, there could be little doubt that Louisville had surpassed UK. The better team was in the state's largest city.

That lasted, oh about one game.

That's when Cal's own magic on the recruiting trail showed up with John Wall and Company beating the Cardinals in Lexington.

And John Calipari, Kentucky coach, has yet to lose to the guy so many compare him to.

Last week, they worked their magic again.

I am not talking about on the court, although Pitino's changing defenses clearly bothered UK and the Wildcats' reflection of Calipari - attack expecting success - eventually shone through as they made every big play in the final nine minutes.

Pitino and Calipari said all the right things. They gushed praise on each other and the opponent. While many doubted their sincerity, it can't be denied that they did all they could to keep a heated rivalry from turning ugly.

Unfortunately, they were not visiting the Georgetown Dialysis Clinic last Monday.

They both desperately wanted to win. Pitino lost with grace, Calipari won with class.

And never have I been more proud of basketball in Kentucky than I was Saturday night, just before 9 p.m.

While drunken idiots were destroying property in Lexington, Terrence Jones was reaching out to his longtime friend, Peyton Siva. About the same time some Louisville students were filmed burning a UK flag, Chane Behanan was staying to talk with "his brother," Michael Kidd-Gilchrist.

In other words, the ones who had just given all their emotions, and maybe then some, were giving a lesson to those who had invested little.

It was so fitting. The true hoops warriors knew that the fight was inside the painted lines.

For his entire career, I have been impressed with Siva, not about his playmaking, but in how he carries himself.

And for all the accusations that John Calipari is a "sleazebag" or "slimeball," I have seen, for the most part, respectful young men who would make any parent proud. That's why they have been such a joy to watch.

Even Pitino noted that when he was quoted as saying, "To tell you the truth, I haven't always liked some of the Kentucky teams, but I really like this team because of their attitude and the way they play."

Here is one that hopes the fans of both schools remember the lesson of Saturday.

LAWRENCEBURG RESIDENTS CELEBRATE UK NATIONAL TITLE, B5

Former Bearcat is NFL's top trainer

Martin has served with Raiders since 1980

By John Herndon
Sports editor

Rod Martin was never a star football player at Anderson County High School but somehow he's become one of the best at what he does in the National Football League.

"I was on the football and baseball teams and Dutch Ishmael was our coach. I didn't play much, but the experience was priceless," Martin said from Oakland, Cal., where he is the head athletic trainer for the Oakland Raiders.

A 1970 graduate of Anderson, Martin received the Fain-Cain Memorial Award, given to the Outstanding NFL Trainer of the Year by the NFL Physicians Society.

The award is named for Dr. Robert Fain and Dr. Thomas Cain, long-time team physicians for the old Houston Oilers.

According to the Society's website, the Fain-Cain award "was established shortly after Dr. Cain's death and Dr. Fain's retirement. Both physicians exhibited long-term commitments to the NFL and exemplary performances. The award is given annually to an NFL athletic trainer who manifests these traits."

Martin said he did not have the privilege of knowing the physicians.

A fan of the Green Bay Packers growing up, Martin never had his eye on pro football during his playing career, looking at a more traditional way of making a living when he enrolled at Morehead State University.

"I started out being a business major but I got bored with a few of those classes and went over to the health, recreation and science area," Martin said in an e-mail interview. "I took an athletic training class that was taught by the Head Athletic Trainer, Ray Mullins. He asked me if I would like to make some extra money by helping him with the football team. I really enjoyed my experi-

Sydney Brown looks for a basket against Lafayette last season.

Brown to try out for All-Stars

By John Herndon
Sports editor

Anderson County High School senior Sydney Brown has been invited to tryouts for the Kentucky All-Stars girls' basketball team that will play the Indiana stars in the two-game summer series.

A 6-foot-1 center, Brown averaged 7.9 points and 4.2 rebounds per game last season.

She hit on 56.5 percent of her field goal attempts.

No Anderson County girl has ever made the Kentucky All-Star team.

"There are some very talented post players trying out," Brown said.

"The ones that go out there and try their hardest and dominate during the try outs will be the ones to make it. I think I may have a good chance but it will be very hard against this competition."

Brown signed with Jacksonville State of the Ohio Valley Conference in the November signing period.

SPRING FOOTBALL

Bearcats confident despite heavy graduation losses

By John Herndon
Sports editor

The return trip to Bowling Green has already been in the planning stages, but begins in earnest next week.

The Anderson County football team will start working in earnest toward a return to the state championship game when they open spring practice on Monday, April 9. The Bearcats will be allowed 10 practices in 15 school days as they work on plugging holes and finding new players in different roles for the 2012 season.

Anderson went 12-3 in 2011, winning the school's first regional championship and advancing to the state finals where they ran into a Bowling Green team that has been listed among the state's all-time greats.

Anderson lost 11 seniors off that team, including a record-setting quarterback, a running back who had more than 2,000 all-purpose yards, a virtually automatic kicker and two all-state linemen.

The Bearcats are taking advantage of the liberalization of the spring practice rule, which had been tied to when a school's basketball teams ended their seasons. Now, teams can, for the most part, choose their own dates as long as they are within the 10 practices in three weeks limitation.

Ross Cox celebrates after a sack against Montgomery County last fall. The Bearcats open spring practice for what they hope is another season to shout about on Monday.

"We get 15 school days to get in 10 practices. This year the KHSAA allowed us to pick our window and we choose to start after spring break. Typically weather in Kentucky can be unpredictable in February and March. Hopefully we can get some good weather in April," Anderson coach Mark Peach said.

The Bearcats started lifting weights again not long after last season's state final and have been hitting the iron ever since. "We have been doing what we always do, work really hard," Peach said. "Our players now know what we expect. Our boys work hard and are very coachable."

Peach expects about 30 boys to come out for spring practice, a number that is limited because of spring sports such as baseball and track. He will be looking to fill some of those holes created by graduation.

"Every year it is a little bit different. This year kind of reminds me of 2010 where we returned some quality linemen like (Steve) Sims, (Todd) Dewoody, (Zach) Cotton, (Jake) Gribbins and (Scotty) Watts. We had some excellent young skilled players like Seth (Carmichael), Ethan (Kelly), (Spencer) Ruggles, (Matt) Sprague, (Travis) Phillips and Blake Curtsinger.

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Former Bearcat has eight hits in MSC series
Anderson County resident Jeremy Turpin has had a pair of big weekends for the St. Catharine College baseball team. On March 17, the junior had three hits and scored three runs as the Patriots bested Georgetown College, 6-5, in the first game of a double-header. Georgetown came back to win game two 6-4.
Turpin continued his hot hitting last weekend, blistering Pikeville pitching in a three-game set at Pikeville. In the first game of the series, Turpin went 3-for-4 and was credited with a sacrifice. He also stole two bases, scored a run and drove in one in a 7-1 St. Catharine victory.
On Saturday, Turpin continued to blaze, going 3-for-4 with three runs scored in the first game of a double-header, then delivered two hits and an RBI while scoring a run as the Patriots completed the three-game sweep 5-2 and 12-6.
Turpin is now hitting .301 with 6 doubles and 12 RBI. He has also stolen 15 bases in 17 attempts. St. Catharine is now 23-13 on the year and 8-3 in the Mid-South Conference.

Turpin named Pitcher of the Week
Anderson County resident Courtney Turpin had a big week for Campbellsville University's softball team last week, earning the Mid-South Conference Pitcher of the Week honor.
Turpin got both wins for the Tigers, taking a 4-2 complete game decision, then coming on in relief to get the victory in game two.
Turpin totaled three wins in four decisions and picked up a save last week.
This season, Turpin leads the MSC with 123.1 innings pitched and ranks seventh in the conference with a 1.70 ERA. Her 14 wins is second most in the conference.
The sophomore belted a two-run walk-off home run to give the Lady Tigers an 8-6 win over Lindsey Wilson on Thursday, completing a double-header sweep.
In addition to her game-winning home run, Turpin had three hits in Saturday's game at Shawnee State.

Anderson grads power Asbury to sweeps of Midway, Alice Lloyd
Former Anderson County High School softball players Miranda Drury, Emily Ethington and Mary Ann Warford powered Asbury University's softball team to sweeps of Alice Lloyd and Midway last week.
In game one of a double-header against Midway, Drury and Warford both had two hits while Ethington belted her first home run of the season in an 8-0 win for the Eagles.
The team won game two 2-1.
In a double-header with Alice Lloyd, Drury and Warford sizzled at the plate. Game one saw Drury drive in three runs with a pair of doubles. Warford stole three bases and scored three times as Asbury rolled to an 11-1 win. In the nightcap, a 15-0 romp, Drury and Warford both collected three hits. Warford stole four bases and scored three times, while Drury drove in four and scored three.
Asbury is now 11-15 on the year but 8-2 in the KIAC.

Bearcats roll past Model, take first two games in Florida

By John Herndon
Sports editor

Anderson County pitching dominated Richmond Model as the Bearcats took a 7-1 win at Barnes Memorial Field last Monday.

"We had a predetermined rotation set up in order to insure our guys got work and to also help set ourselves up for a week of baseball during spring break," Anderson coach L. W. Barnes said. "(Steven) Watts got the start and finished the first two innings—five (strikeouts), two walks and one hit. When he was around the zone, he was dominant, but in the second inning he was a little erratic.

"Brandon Eliadis pitched the third and fourth innings, giving up one hit, two K's and two walks.

"He, too, was a little too inconsistent, but Brandon has been working on some mechanical issues, and he is doing fine."

Landon Case threw the final three innings, striking out three and giving up a hit and an earned run. "Landon was consistently all around the plate and a fine job," Barnes said.

Anderson struggled offensively but Case delivered two hits while Shae Sparrow got the Bearcat attack going with a two-out, single to drive in Eliadis in the fourth to break a scoreless tie.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Sparrow later came home when Tanner Roberts reached on a wind-blown pop single.

Sparrow later drove in another run with a bases-loaded ground out in the fifth.

Anderson scored four times in the sixth with Granville Hayes scoring from third base on a wild pitch and Cole Sayer later belting a bases-loaded double to round out the scoring.

"Overall, we played a very spiritless game," Barnes said.

"We got a win we were most likely supposed to have gotten. There was not a whole lot of enthusiasm, but we got the win.

"Defensively, we juggled

a lot in order to build some depth at the catching position, and I thought the players responded well in that aspect.

"The fact is we have a long way to go and a very tough schedule to go through in order to get there. We'd better improve offensively or get used tallies in the wrong column."

Anderson Co. 5, Washington Co. 3

The Bearcats delivered a 5-3 home field win over Washington County on Thursday, a day after a game with Henry County was called because of rain.

Anderson Co. 2, Glasgow 1

Landon Case went the distance and had the game-winning RBI as the Bearcats defeated previously unbeaten Glasgow in the first game of the Florida Beach Bash at Fort Walton Beach on Sunday.

Anderson improved to 4-2. Glasgow fell to 8-1.

Anderson Co. 11, Owensboro 5

The Bearcats won their fourth straight with an 11-5 win over Owensboro in Fort Walton Beach on Monday. Senior right-hander Darrin Laswell, who had last played as a freshman, picked up his first varsity win.

Lady Bearcats dominant in 'mercy rule' beatdown of Shelby County

By John Herndon
Sports editor

Anderson County has made it clear that it fully intends on competing for the Eighth Region softball championship this year.

And the Lady Bearcats made a gung-ho statement to that effect last Tuesday when they routed visiting Shelby County 12-1, dominating the Rockets in every way possible.

The Lady Bearcats capped the day when junior third baseman Kelsey New belted a 2-out, 2-run home run in the bottom of the fifth that extended Anderson's lead to 12-1 and invoked the "mercy rule."

But Anderson's dominance was apparent from the outset as the Lady Bearcats scored three times in the bottom of the first. It could have been worse as the Lady Bearcats also had runners on first and third with one out but could not get them home.

First baseman Hannah Searcy ripped a 2-run double off Shelby pitcher Danielle DeSilvey for the big hit of the opening frame. The junior went 3-for-3 with two doubles and four RBI.

The Lady Bearcats got a run in the third when Jessie Crouch brought in Lexan Overby, running for Searcy, with a sacrifice fly.

Anderson County's Kelsey New (15) slides into third base as Shelby County's Haley Powell has trouble coming up with the ball. New's fifth-inning home run invoked the "mercy rule."

After Shelby executed a double-steal for its only run in the fourth, the Lady Bearcats erupted for four runs in the bottom of the inning and in the fifth to end things. Searcy again got the big hit in the fourth, driving in Molly Burkhead and Anna Marie Hyatt with her second double before Bailey Curry plated New with a sacrifice fly.

"We hit some really hard balls and Kelsey got ahold of one on her home run. ... Madison Brummett has stepped up as the (designated player) and has hit the ball well. Hannah is playing extremely well offensively and defensively," Anderson coach Brian Glass said.

Five different Anderson runners stole a base and the Lady Bearcats moved up two other times on defensive indifference and took advantage of two wild pitches and two passed balls.

"We have a lot of speed this year and have really worked hard in practice to stress the importance of being smart on the bases," Glass said.

Peavler got the victory despite not being particularly sharp in the pitching circle. Shelby only got three hits and Peavler walked two but she was consistently behind in the count only to somehow retire Shelby hitters.

"Her rise ball wasn't working well and she was missing her locations some," Glass said. "However, she did battle and she has a lot of confidence in her fielders behind her."

Last movie I saw: 'Hunger Games'

Person in history I'd most like to meet: I would like to meet Abraham Lincoln.

Future plans: I plan to become a therapist.

Principal's comments: Charles is an amazing person, student and gifted artist. He has overcome many obstacles in his life and continues to work hard in every part of his coursework. He excels in art and martial arts, and he hopes to become a therapist one day so that he can help others. Charles is a true shining star at ACMS!

MacKenzie Andrade

Grade and school: Fifth grade, Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg

Favorite subject: P.E.

Favorite musical artist: Lady GaGa

Last book I read: 'Rules'

Last movie I saw: 'Big Miracle'

Person in history I'd most like to meet: Abe Lincoln

Future plans: Dancer

Principal's comments: MacKenzie is a wonderful student who puts her best effort into each class assignment. She is conscientious, hard-working and focused in her school work, which ensures that she is a very successful student. MacKenzie cares about her classmates and interacts in a positive, courteous, respectful, Christlike way with her family, friends and the CAL staff. She is a purpose-oriented young lady who always has clear goals in mind for her performance at school. MacKenzie has been blessed with parents who show their love for the Lord in every situation, and she understands the importance of sharing that same love with others.

MARTIN

ence with the many different situations that I was faced with and I developed a passion for the profession.”

And Martin has turned that passion into success and respect at the highest level. He joined the Raiders as the assistant athletic trainer in 1980 and was promoted to head athletic trainer 15 years later, replacing George Anderson, the only other trainer the franchise has had since being formed in 1960.

Martin has been through a move from Oakland to Los Angeles and back and has been a part of Raider teams that have been to three Super Bowls, winning in Super Bowls XV and XVIII.

It is a busy life and involves more than just treating injuries. What Martin does on Monday helps determine what goes on the rest of the week. “Mondays are the day after the game and we have med call at 10 a.m.,” Martin said.

“The players that were injured in the game are required to check in with us then to be reevaluated to see if we need to do any special tests (MRI or X-ray) and to start their treatment or rehab. After we see the players I take the injury report to the head coach so he will have an idea who will be able to practice and play in the upcoming game so they can start to put together the game

Throughout game week, Martin and his assistants spend most of their time rehabbing and treating injured players getting them ready for Sunday.

And even when the season ends, Martin’s job is not done. “The off-season starts with rehabbing your post-season surgeries and the players that were unable to play in your last game.”

The off-season is also spent compiling information on possible draftees who were to be evaluated at the Indianapolis Combine in February.

At Indy, Martin says, “We do up to 330 physical exams and various tests on the invited draft eligible players. After returning from Indianapolis we compile that information to get ready for the Draft at the end of April. We are also compiling information on the free agents that will be available. We have to go back to Indianapolis a couple of weeks before the draft to do recheck exams on a few of the players that hadn’t recovered from their injuries at the time of the Combine.

“Our off-season conditioning program starts the first of April and goes into June. We will start training camp toward the end of July.”

Rodman Martin poses with his trophy, awarded for being the Trainer of the Year in the NFL.

Despite being away from Lawrenceburg for over 30 years, Martin stays in touch with lifelong friends.

“I don’t get back to Lawrenceburg as much as I would like to, I don’t have any family left in Lawrenceburg,” he said. “I still have a lot of friends there. I attended our 40th high school reunion and had a blast. I truly enjoyed growing up in Lawrenceburg and wouldn’t have traded that opportunity and experience for anything.”

Austin Hall (22) and Tristan Ashburn (15) are expected to be key players for Anderson County in 2012. They were starters on Anderson’s state runner-up team.

FOOTBALL

“This year we return a really nice group of linemen on both sides of the ball and we have some young excellent skilled players along with some really good skilled kids with some experience. “So I really think it is a lot like 2010 where we have to figure out where the pieces of the puzzle fit on both sides of the ball.”

Peach knows that his team will not be a favorite to return to Bowling Green. The Bearcats will likely be picked third, at best, in the region behind Conner and Franklin County. But Peach has said many times in the off-season, “We will be fine.”

He believes the Bearcats’ recent success could provide a sense of tradition for the upcoming year.

“Our guys are excited and are working hard to have another banner year in 2012,” Peach said. “We have been very fortunate to have won 48 football games the last five years.

“We want to do what we try to do every year, which is be very competitive and get ourselves ready for a post-season run.”
